

LARGE MOUTH BASS

Micropterus salomoides

Large mouth bass carries a delicate and mild flavor with earthy and nutty notes while the meat is firm yet tender and flaky. It pairs well with a variety of flavors like salt & amp; pepper, lemon juice, ginger & amp; scallion, and more. Large mouth bass naturally tends to be fishier than other species depending on where it is sourced and cleaned, so consumers typically either love it or hate it. Despite that, it has great nutritional value as it is a rich source of omega-3's, lean protein, vitamins A, B6, and B12, and selenium.
